The figure of about one million people exposed to the virus over the same period is well below the government's estimate of 1.8 million people who had been vaccinated against anthrax over the last two decades. Last year's budget included £5m for a programme to immunise 80,000 people against anthrax, by vaccinating them against the disease. About 100,000 people have already been immunised since it was introduced in 2002. The new figures will fuel speculation that ministers have failed to build up sufficient stocks of antibiotic drugs to treat those infected by anthrax. Critics will also argue that the programme is wasting money and is dangerous because some of the treatments are experimental. The Department of Health has not published figures for patients who are exposed to anthrax but the NHS spends up to £3m every year on out-of-hour treatment for victims. The government's medical advisers, the Medicines Control Agency, have resisted claims that there is a significant risk to the public of anthrax from imported soya beans. Dr Penny Moxham, head of the national mesothelioma service at the Royal Free Hospital, north London, said: "This is a significant outbreak and we want to make sure that the work we are doing to control anthrax doesn't put the public at any risk. "The public will rightly be concerned by the amount of money being wasted to treat individuals with anthrax, and will want to know that the risks of taking antibiotics to treat people who have only been mildly exposed to anthrax have been thoroughly investigated." Health professionals have learned of more than 20 cases of anthrax since 2001 among soya bean growers in the UK. Eight of these people have died. Other cases have occurred in Brazil and the UK's other food-growing nations, Denmark and

Productivity improvement.Q: Counting character occurrences in multiple files in a folder I want to do the following: I have 5 pdf files in a folder each of them has a special character in it. I want to count that character in all 5 files and append the output to a txt file. The below code does the appending to the txt file but the problem is that it counts all the occurrences in a single file and appends the result to a single txt file. What I want is that firstly it counts the number of special characters in a single file and then appends the result to a txt file. import os import sys import glob from subprocess import call output = [] for file in glob.glob('.pdf'): call(['otool', '-num-specials', file]) output.append(' '.join(str(i) for i in [int(x) for x in output])) f = open('output.txt', 'w') print >>f, ' '.join(output) f.close() A: So you want to get the count of special characters from each file and aggregate them, as opposed to having it print them all together? Maybe something like this? import re special_characters = '!@#$%^&()_+|}){":?' def get_count(filename): if not os.path.exists(filename): raise ValueError("File '{0}' does not exist".format(filename)) with open(filename) as f: for line in f: if re.search(special_characters, line): count = re.search(special_characters, line).group(0) yield int(count) output = [] with open("output.txt", "w") as f 6d1f23a050
